Fixed vs. Growth Mindset

The research-based model of these two mindsets and their influence on learning was presented in 1988 by Carol Dweck. In Dr. Dweck's work, she determined that a student's perception about their own learning accompanied by a broader goal of learning had a significant influence on their ability to overcome challenges and grow in knowledge and ability. This has become known as the Fixed vs. Growth Mindset model. In this model, the performance-goal-oriented student is represented by the fixed mindset, while the learning-goal-oriented student is represented by the growth mindset.

To Do

Nothing for now

Welcome!

UBalt Ready is designed to prepare you for your journey as a student at the University of Baltimore. UBalt's approach to learning in any modality (in-person, online, remote) requires you to navigate a variety of programs and applications, each one best suited to the content of the courses you'll take.

You will likely use the learning management system (Canvas), online video platform (Zoom), web resources, Microsoft Office 365 applications, and other digital learning tools. While this will make your learning experiences more interesting and engaging, it will take time and effort to learn these platforms – time and effort that will quickly pay off as you begin learning.

Start Strong Contract

I plan to take charge of my education at the University of Baltimore by starting strong. I recognize that this is an essential part of my journey.

I, [Your Name], hereby commit to connecting with at least one faculty member and one classmate during the first week of classes. This effort is aimed at building a strong foundation for my academic journey and creating a supportive learning environment. By engaging with my professors and peers, I will enhance my understanding of the course material, establish valuable connections, and make the most of my learning at UBalt.

I understand the importance of initiating communication early on and recognize the benefits it will bring to my overall educational experience. Through this contract, I pledge to take the initiative to prioritize interaction with both my faculty and classmates. By fostering these connections, I am setting the stage for a successful and fulfilling academic semester.
